

FEMA Sheltering and Housing Solutions

STEP 1

The survivor applies for FEMA assistance.

STEP 2

FEMA conducts an assessment of the survivor's application/property to ensure that damage was sustained to the applicant's primary residence.

STEP 3

The applicant is provided with FEMA sheltering and temporary housing solutions.

A survivor who is displaced because of the disaster may be eligible for one or more of the assistance options below.

Displacement Assistance provides money for immediate housing needs.

Lodging Expense Reimbursement provides money to reimburse for emergency lodging expenses such as a hotel or motel.

Direct Lease allows FEMA to lease residential properties as temporary housing. Properties sought for immediate rental can include single-family homes, multi-family homes, apartments, cooperatives, condominiums and town houses.

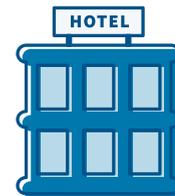

Rental Assistance provides money to pay for a temporary place to live while plans are made for more permanent housing.

Multi-Family Lease and Repair allows FEMA to make repairs or improvements to existing multi-family rental properties located within or near declared areas to provide temporary housing.

Home Repair and Replacement Assistance provides money to eligible homeowners to rebuild or make repairs to their primary residence.

Transitional Sheltering Assistance provides payment directly to a participating hotel or motel to cover room and tax costs.

Transportable Temporary Housing Unit (travel trailer or mobile housing unit) are available when rental assistance cannot be used due to a lack of available housing resources.
